ANDREW MUIR

Andrew Muir is a successful business leader, entrepreneur and philanthropist who as CEO of The Good Guys led his family's business to become Australia's leading household appliances and electronics retailer.

Andrew took over as CEO of Mighty Muir's in 1993 and renamed the business to The Good Guys and established the talented team and led the company through a rapid period growth across metropolitan and regional Australia developing The Good Guys iconic brand to be one of Australia's leading consumer household appliances and electronics retailers. In 2016 JB Hi-Fi acquired The Good Guys (64 years after it was founded by Andrew's father Ian).

Andrew Muir is a dedicated philanthropist and in 2010 established The Good Guys Foundation which provided funds for a variety of causes including health services, youth services, disability services and support for the disadvantaged. Its successful Local Giving Program donated more than $8 million to more than 150 charities across Australia.

Andrew is also passionate about the topic of nutrition; in particular educating children about healthy eating and in 2010 established The Good Foundation as a charity to deliver programs that promote good health and nutrition. He was instrumental in bringing Jamie Oliver's Ministry of Food to Australia and delivery of these programs remain The Good Foundation's main priority.

Andrew Muir has also been heavily involved with the Rotary Foundation & was recently recognised for his contribution with a Certificate of Appreciation. He currently devotes his time to business interests including Best Friends Pet Care & Momatu and his roles in the community as Director of The Good Foundation and Board Director Essendon Football Club.
